

What if?

What if you wrote an advice column for a newspaper?

You have received this letter from a reader:

Please help. At breaktime, my best friend just likes to walk around the playground and chat and it is becoming boring. I want to play with other friends too but every time I have suggested this, my friend has refused. They don't want to play with the others and are happy to waste our time wandering. I want to have more fun and play with other people at break but don't want to lose my best friend. What can I do?

What will your answer be?

What if?

What if you were a fortune teller using a magical crystal ball and a set of cards to read the future? Some events you see in the crystal ball will definitely happen, and some are less likely. You can also advise customers of things they can do to bring good luck.

A customer has come to you. They have had some bad luck and are also looking for a new job.

What fortune will you give them?

What if?

What if you were a zookeeper at the world's largest zoo? The zoo holds every animal from around the world.

Today, a new zookeeper has arrived. What advice would you give them about looking after the animals and staying safe?

What if?

What if you were placed in charge of the country? What would you change? What laws would you pass?

What if?

What if you wrote an advice column for a newspaper?

You have received this letter from a reader:

Please help. At breaktime, my best friend just likes to walk around the playground and chat and it is becoming boring. I want to play with other friends too but every time I have suggested this, my friend has refused. They don't want to play with the others and are happy to waste our time wandering. I want to have more fun and play with other people at break but don't want to lose my best friend. What can I do?

What will your answer be?

What if?

What if you were a zookeeper at the world's largest zoo? The zoo holds every animal from around the world.

Today, a new zookeeper has arrived. What advice would you give them about looking after the animals and staying safe?

What if?

What if you were a fortune teller using a magical crystal ball and a set of cards to read the future?

Some events you see in the crystal ball will definitely happen, and some are less likely. You can also advise customers of things they can do to bring good luck.

A customer has come to you. They have had some bad luck and are also looking for a new job.

What fortune will you give them?

What if?

What if you were placed in charge of the country? What would you change? What laws would you pass?